housing development is at this time unable to accommodate the additional flow from the anticipated development.

- The existing National Water Commission's Eltham Wastewater Treatment Plant is currently not treating to the levels established by the regulatory Government Agencies
- The National Water Commission has stated that a plan has been developed for the comprehensive rehabilitation and expansion of the plant which will enable current flows as well as additional flows to receive treatment to the levels established by the regulatory Government Agencies. Although this rehabilitation and expansion will enable the plant to accommodate the additional flow from the anticipated development, a timeline with respect to the commencement of this rehabilitation and expansion has not been provided. Considering that this timeline has not been established the Natural Resources Conservation Authority is not minded to grant a permit until the rehabilitation and expansion works have been completed to the satisfaction of the
